

Hot and Humid! That is the first thing I have to say about my trip to the Bahamas. In Alaska, where I am from, it is cold and dry. Of course I have done some travelling but this was on a whole new level of hot and humid. But aside from the weather it was an amazing trip, it was very fun and was a great experience to go and see other parts of the world. I have never before been on a cruise so it was all new to me.

Once I finally made it to the port in Orlando, Florida (red-eye flight from Nome) I met Kiera-Dawn the 1st runner-up and the winner of the cruise for selling the most raffle tickets. We stayed at the airport hotel until we docked on the cruise the following afternoon. From Orlando we set sail onto the island of Nassau, Bahamas and then the next day to the cruise's private island of Cococay, Bahamas.

The trip was a non-stop fun fest! We were able to enjoy the luxury of a Royal Suite which gave us priority access to everything on the ship (awesome right!). The first stop in Nassau was a fun-filled day of shopping and being a tourist. The Bahamas is a really gorgeous place and I enjoyed looking at all the sites. When we docked at Cococay we went to the beach and enjoyed the sun and the ocean, it was a nice day out, enough clouds so the sun was not beaming directly on us, and no sunburns.

The cruise ship was always rocking to music every night, and had loads of food. We enjoyed the live bands, karaoke, pool parties, and buffets. Overall it was a great vacation and I had a fabulous time. The people I travelled with were awesome and I don't think it could have gone any better.
